

My objective, by teaching golfers to consistently make good golf shots, is to allow them to better enjoy the game. Because playing to one's full potential makes the game fun to play. The concept is for the golfer is to use as much of his or her own natural athleticism by promoting the proper set-up, alignment, ball position, and posture.

My students learn to develop good golf habits that are much harder to break than bad golf habits. The end result is a more proper, consistent and repeating golf swing.

- ◆ Over 35 years in the golf industry
- ◆ Class A1 member of the Professional Golfers Association since 1992
- ◆ Head golf professional at Oak Tree Country Club since 1992
- ◆ Assistant golf professional at La Quinta Country Club, host course for the Bob Hope Classic tour event